

Impact of Inflation on the Cost of Living and Education for International Post-Secondary Students in Canada

Objectives

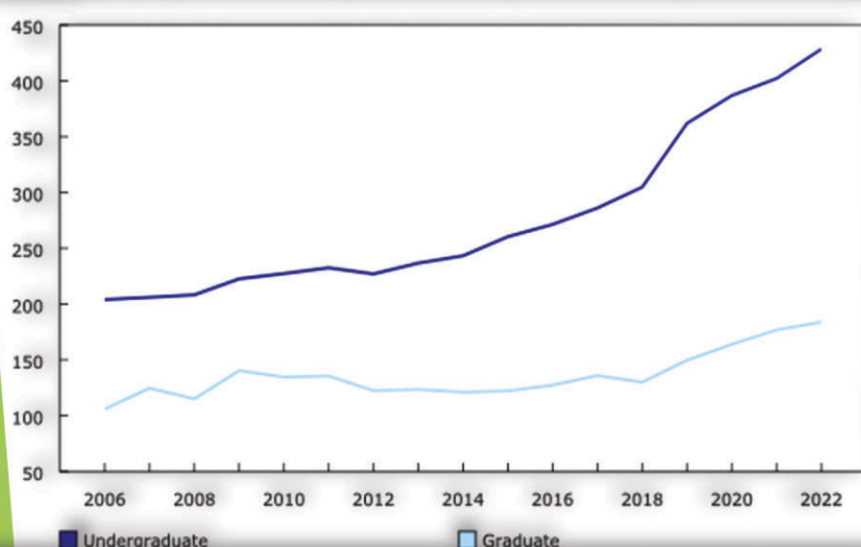

In 2022/2023, Canadian graduate students will pay the highest tuition fees. Full-time graduate students in business, management and public administration and dentistry will face higher tuition fees, followed by students in mathematics, computer and information sciences, and engineering.

Annual Price Change in Different Provinces of Canada

Relative differences in tuition fees between international students and Canadian students, Canada, 2006 to 2022

The rising number of international students, combined with the higher tuition fees they pay compared with Canadian students, has contributed to the increase in the share of tuition fee revenues of Canadian universities versus provincial funding.

Recommendations

- Immediate financial support through grants and scholarships.
- Develop flexible tuition payment plans.
- Implement enhanced financial literacy programs.
- Increase access to mental health services.
- Provide career counseling and support.
- Advocate for changes in government policies.